

A landscape photograph showing a dark, silhouetted mountain range in the foreground and middle ground. The sky is a deep blue, transitioning to a lighter orange and yellow at the horizon. A large, bright, full moon is positioned in the upper right quadrant of the image, casting a soft glow. A thin, white contrail or streak of light extends from the upper left towards the center of the frame.

Dear Miranda:

Just wanted to drop a note of thanks to you for travelling out to our Outside Lands here in San Francisco the other evening to teach the preparedness course. It really is an excellent lesson plan with super clear content. You presented well and handled our quirky community members so well! Hope to see/work with you again!
